If you have a sound card or decent onboard audio, you can use that instead to provide better quality audio. EAX adds special effects to the sound and gives you advantages such as being able to determine with greater accuracy where people are true positional, and being underwater or behind walls will sound more realistic occlusion culling. Yet it can bounce shells in the heat of battle because of its round shape and favourable angles, plus the decent gun depression angle. However, expect to take damage if you get hit. To be more specific, its high acceleration allows it to reach its decent top speed quickly, which will often come in handy, since you will need to retreat quickly after shooting your opponents.The shot per damage is average, yet the reload time of each shell inside the magazine is very low compared to others. Both the accuracy and the aiming time are pretty solid, especially for autoloaders. Use this combination to surprise the enemy, pump your shells into their armour, and get out of there before they even realise it. Before you initiate your attack, make sure you have cover to retreat to, where you can plan the next one. Conserve your HP by making the most of the vehicle's mobility and surprise factor—its good view range will definitely help with this. And don't forget to reload your magazine during long maneuvers, so you can achieve maximum battle performance. The Vertical Stabiliser will increase your gun stabilisation substantially. Or you might just want to go for the Enhanced Gun Laying Drive instead. Finally, the Improved Ventilation grants a useful bonus to most of the vehicles parameters. As usual, Repair is the top priority, then skills to improve specific aspects of the vehicle, and Brothers in Arms later for a boost to many combat parameters. Works also while reloading.
