Subscribe to our free newsletter Request a new review I went home and study I did.And am I glad I did. I went back a week later to buy, but much to my shagrin,IT WAS GONE. Now what Living in Calif.,I am near 3 Carvin stores and after visiting one,I found out this amp had been discontinued but given a new suit of clothes and renamed.But I wanted that one. I think that the general aesthetics of the amp are somewhat less than pleasing.It has chicken head knobs and black carpet covering.There was not a lot of design in the presentation of the outside as there was on the inside.This model has been redesigned since 95 with black tolex and round silver knobs and is called the MTS 212.Coming from the old school of amps, I would liked to have seen a vibrato circuit installed.It takes a little patience to dial in a tone that you like,so if your in a hurry and dont want to spend the time twiddling the knobs,than you probably will get frustrated. These controls are not interactive,which basically means that each knob is independantly heard so the sound is balanced in that the treble and bass blend well without muddying up.You need to study the manual and play it till you FEEL how it operates.Once you get the hang of it, its like listening to your favorite radio station. The unit is built with plywood and not pressed wood.This is an advantage as it makes carrying the amp lighter and giving it a better resonance. <http://sfera-vlad.ru/img/boston-acoustics-hps-12ho-manual.xml>

High quality electronics were used such as precision film resistors to prevent excessive noise. It uses Mylar caps that have a tighter tolerance and help to reduce microphonics. There are no ICS or transistors, giving it a purer overall sound. It has a high input impedance of 2.2 megohm which is 2.2 times greater than other amps having 1 meg ohms. This guards against high frequency loss from misloading guitar pickups. The reverb tank is a quality accutronics unit. This is an extremely well engineered piece of equipment. Having played guitar for 35 yrs and have owned every amp from HOODO to VOODO, I would hesitate to compare this to another name brand amp as it is so subjective and each amp has its own special something that draws you to it. For someone on a budget, I would suggest you compare this and other Carvin amps to modern boutique amps that are much costlier and decide for yourself. I think the lack of advertising and endorsements have kept this company hidden and somewhat ignored. They sell without a middle man and can keep the costs down on their product. This amp is a diamond in the rough, and it took me along time to get off the name brand bus and smell the roses. This review was originally published on Did you find this review helpful yes no. An effects loop and spring reverb. Normally associated with the baffle V412 this is the one I use also with. UTILIZATION Extremely simple configuration it works like most amps. SOUNDS This is not necessarily the sound I'm looking too hot for me. OVERALL OPINION I have over 10 years but few served as living in apartments and released the group play for quite some time once he has almost never changed and has very few flight hours. When I bought it brand carvin was found in France bought in Germany. I tried the Marshall and Peavey classic, unfortunately I was not experienced enough to be able to correctly identify my needs. Carvin is a good brand of amps even if it is not necessarily widespread menfin Steve Vai plays it anyway.

and it can not have the same sound as everyone else. 2 of 3 people found this review helpful Did you find this review helpful yes no By using our services, you agree to our use of cookies. Would this sound good.

Or should I try to get a 1x15 since its going to be a single speaker. I'm looking for a smoother clear sound. I think it has a bit more high end detail, but still has smooth upper mids. The clips sound great to me. Anything else by WGS is risky powerwise, and would be more chimey. I say, why not I like that the 50W mode of the amp actually cuts out 2 tubes rather than run the set in triode mode. Pentode mode is more dynamic. I imagine it adjusts the OT impedance as well. JJ are a good current production choice. I've gone into preamp tube suggestions b4. I still like the JJ short, medium and long plate type mix, but there are other options for the same type of response. True that tube choices don't make near as much tonal difference as a speaker, but they can add a certain touch response and harmonic character you might prefer. I'll probably pick this one up next paycheck then. I've heard conflicting things about ohms though. I know my amp can handle 4 8 and 16 but does it really affect the tone that much. With tube amps, the issue is that they only perform at optimum standards when the tubes reflect see the proper impedance for the tubes and circuit design. I can't find any other demos, but I suspect it will sound superb when broken in. You should be able to run just two power tubes in the amp with the power set to 50W with no problem considering that it disables two tubes anyway. Tube pairs are usually configured as the inside and outside socket set. If there's no output from one socket pair, just switch the tubes to the other socket pair. As I say, 6L6GC like sounding power tubes including EL34 types like the JJ 6CA7 or the earlier distorting EL34II might be a better choice with the 12L. It depends what you are after. Those amps are old enough now to at least have the caps checked for leakage, and I'd have the bias set up for a warm clear sound as well. That amp also has DC heater filaments in the V1 and V2 sockets to eliminate any early hum that would otherwise be amplified.

The 2.2M Ohm input impedance will make the guitar resonant peak a tad stronger and sharper, but there are a few easy ways to remedy that if it's not to your taste. It really seems like an overall smart design worth keeping and tweaking if desired. I read that the dirty channel can be altered to SLO100 specs. That and a more beefy ClassicTone OT might be worthwhile future mods. Musicians Unite To Save SmallTown USA. These are very nice heads that get super loud and sound great. They have TONS of features and amazing tone that is often described as a blend between a Mark IV and an early dual rec. Switchable between 100 and 60 watts with independent EQ for each channel PLUS a 5 band selectable EQ much like a Mark IV. Great reverb. This amp is in excellent operating condition and good cosmetic condition it has a few scratches and nicks here and there This one comes with the original footswitch. Amp cover, and power cable. It lived the second half of its life in my smoke free studio, but I don't know how it lived before that. No scratchy pots or issues like that. Just awesome MESA tone. Own a rare classic. Read about it here Link to manual I have perfect feedback for a reason. I ship fast and my items are asor. I only buy the best and then only after doing meticulous research. This is a no return auction with the exception of DOA or a shipping fiasco. Item is 100% as described. I will only accept bids from buyers in the continental US. All tube 100 watts with a master volume straight outta the factory. The most redeeming thing I can say about this amp is that it is the best sounding guitar amplifier that I have ever heard. Its just as simple as that. You know its true.

I got this amp in fairly rough shape, considered doing a full restoration on it, then decided that that would be a total sin in the eyes of the Lord. So I simply had it fully retubed, serviced, and I put it on my rig to test and make sure its all ship shape and it has yet to come off. The amp not only runs fantastic, but it sounds SO GOOD. I will happily play it until it sells and then I will ship it with a frown on my face and a tear in my eye. Im selling amps to pay for school and I have to sell this. This is the very amp model made famous by Pete Townshend of the Who. If you're thinking, Who the heck is the Who. Or you can use the Googler and learn about the beginnings of all that heavy metal and hard rock youve been listening to. Other notables we might as well mention while were in session Jimi Hendrix the best ever and we dont need to debate that because its undebatable when all factors are considered Pink Floyd, Led Zeppelin, Fleetwood Mac, Rush, Rolling Stones, Nirvana, etc etc. Its a pretty gratuitous list. and it goes on and on and on. THIS very amplifier no doubt rubbed shoulders with the best of the best. It IS from 1969 and therefore could probably tell stories if it could tell stories. The guy I bought it from claimed it actually WAS Petes, but hes also a fat liar. although there are a lot of other details that point to maybe Let it be said that I am making no such claim bey They want their secret weapon back. Here is a 1970s Laney Klipp, built in the UK. 100 watts all tube evil power. The amp JUST came back from the shop where it had a run through and got all fixed up and is ready to rock and roll. This amp is essentially a Supergroup in one channel, but then there is the infamous Klipp channel. The Klipp channel is about the most evil sounding distortion ever and is known to be Toni Iommis secret workhorse. The 100 watts is LOUD when cranked, but the amp also sounds great at lower volumes as well, and a lot of 100 watt cant do that.

The Klipp is rare and these dont pop often. plus, the word is getting out and the values are going up. This Klipp has the original 70s Partridge transformers. Deets Im willing to ship worldwide. But the amp is very heavy. I reserve the right to end the auction in the event of a local sale. Feel free to ask questions or share more details if you have them. Thanks. These amps are pretty awesome. Its basically a wellbuilt Fender Twin Reverbor a Fender PA 100 stuffed into a cushiony Kustomish head cab. Finding any of these 2000 series EARTH tube heads is a score. Each of the 4 channels have 2 inputs and their own volume. There is also a Master Reverb and Master Gain which surprisingly, and unlike the 70s Fenders that Earth was trying to copy, sounds pretty good. There are 4 power tubes 6L6s and 9nine. Works as it should and sounds GREAT. If you are not within the 48 states i.e. Alaska, Hawaii, or anywhere else in the world you MUST email me before you bid.
